

The Crayon Box That Talked

Shane DeRolf

While walking in a toy store the day before today
I overheard a crayon box with many things to say.

"I don't like Red!" said Yellow, and Green said, "Nor do I!

And no one here likes Orange, but no one knows just why."

"We are a bunch of crayons that doesn't get along,"
said Blue to all the others, "Something here is wrong!"

Well, I bought that box of crayons and took it home
with me,
And laid out all the colors so the crayons could all see.
They watched me as
I colored with Red and Blue and Green,
And Black and White and Orange and every color in between.

They watched as Green became the grass and Blue became the sky.
The Yellow sun was shining bright on White clouds drifting by.

Colors were changing as they touched becoming something new.
They watched me as I colored, they watched 'til I was through.

And when I'd finally finished I began to walk away.
And as I did, the crayon box had something more to say.

"I do like Red!" said Yellow, and Green said, "So do I!
And, Blue, you were terrific so high up in the sky!"

"We are a box of crayons, each one of us unique.
But when we get together the picture is complete."

In the poem “The Crayon Box That Talked,” the poet is displaying the crayons as living objects. Have you ever imagined an object that could talk? What would that object be? What would it say and why?

Write a composition about an object that could talk and explain what it would say.

In your composition, be sure to

- describe what the object is and why you chose it.
- explain what the object would say.
- explain why the object would say it.
